IN ANSWERING REFER TO

July 11, 1917.

Precious Joe:—

Have been worrying about you all day. If you had guard duty to-day, then my worry is not without cause. The picture of you lying down on that cot, such as you described it, in rain soaked clothing is continually in my mind. By the time your clothes dry on your body, you are called again to go out for another soaking. At least did they give you one of those rubber capes! It looks as though it will clear for the afternoon and I sure do hope so.

See to it that you get a good rest to-morrow night, and let me know how Rose has you feeling. Take care of yourself — otherwise I shall lose your company.

Lovingly
Frances.
